

365 Days in the Book of Mormon

Tools you will need:

A set of scriptures – you will be marking in your Book of Mormon a lot

A journal

Different colors of highlighters/pencils. You may want a color for certain topics such as Faith, Hope, Charity, Prophecies, Comforting Scriptures, the Creation, the Fall, the Atonement and any other topics you may want to personally study.

What you will need to know:

A “footnote study” means to study the verses listed and look up the footnotes. It is possible that you will get sidetracked with a different topic of study while doing this. That is okay.

A “Plan of Salvation study” means to reread the chapter (or if there are specific verses listed) until you come to one of the legs of the Plan of Salvation tripod: the Creation, the Fall, or the Atonement - that sticks out to you. Using all study resources (footnote, topical guide, Ids.org, etc) study that topic further.

A “Compare” study means the same chapter is also in the bible. Two days are set aside when the Book of Mormon quotes a chapter in the bible. Study this by comparing the Book of Mormon chapter with the bible chapter, doing a footnote study with one of the verses, or doing a Plan of Salvation study.

Make sure to include prayer as your daily study habit.

Some of the reading assignments are quite short. For the ultimate benefit, consider setting a minimum study time. For example, determine now that you will not spend less than 10 minutes per day studying.

The purpose of this study guide is to provide an outline for you to be able to read from the Book of Mormon every day in 2015. It is only a guideline. If the Spirit prompts you to study a topic in more detail please do so.

Remember, now is the time to find yourself in the Book of Mormon!!
